Bottom Line for Counsel

How to Use This Document

This is an attorney-facing factual narrative. It is not a demand letter, legal conclusion, damages model, or litigation strategy. The purpose is to give counsel a readable, chronological account of what happened, who was involved, which facts are documented, which facts are Garrett Baxley's personal account, and which records are likely employer-held or need discovery.

The working question for counsel is whether Turner's stated termination rationale reflects an isolated performance/availability dispute, or whether the record shows a broader pattern: role ambiguity, requests for support or clarification, disability-related notice, operational work continuing through termination, positive trust signals, shifting rationale, and post-termination issues used in the executive review.

This version intentionally does not bury counsel in formal citations. It uses source-strength labels instead: [D] documented in a primary artifact or screenshot; [C] corroborated by metadata, third-party source, or cross-reference; [CN] Garrett's contemporaneous note or reconstruction of what he perceived or recorded; [GA] Garrett's current account; [EH] employer-held / discovery needed; [Q] sensitive attorney-only material.

Executive Narrative in Plain English

Garrett Baxley was hired by Turner Construction Company on October 8, 2025 as the on-site HR Manager for the CTS LoneStar joint venture supporting a Google data-center build in the Lueders/Haskell, Texas area. The JV partners identified in the record are Turner, Clayco, Source Building Group, and TW Constructors. The termination letter states his employment ended effective May 19, 2026 and was signed by Jeff Dolan, Vice President and Senior Director of Human Resources. [D]

The central factual dispute is not whether Garrett had friction, stress, or gaps in the operating model. The record itself shows a difficult, multi-stakeholder project environment. The sharper question is whether the company's "performance / not doing the work / availability / collaboration / adherence to leadership direction" framing ignores the context that Garrett had repeatedly been trying to document: unclear authority, being accountable without visibility, routed-around HR decisions, work he built or supported being rejected or repackaged, and escalating distress after he disclosed neurodivergence and his need for clarity. [D/CN/EH]

The first clean documentary anchor is February 9, 2026: Garrett's "Aligning on JV Execution" email to Corina Murguia, using the phrase "I need to reset this." That appears to be the first documented attempt to identify a role/operating breakdown before the disability disclosure, before the final intern-rollout dispute, and before the termination. [D]

The second anchor is the February 17, 2026 Owner's Manual. Turner's HRM Bootcamp required the Owner's Manual as pre-work, so the disclosure occurred through an employer-invited HR channel. Garrett sent Corina the Owner's Manual, which disclosed that he is on the autism spectrum and explained that ambiguity, shifting expectations, and unclear standards can cause overload, anxiety, panic, depression, and "performance as identity" harm. [D]

The third anchor is the February 23, 2026 Jeff Dolan welfare/support text. Within roughly a week of the Owner's Manual disclosure to Corina, Jeff Dolan - the same senior HR leader who later signed the termination letter - texted Garrett's personal phone after Garrett had gone dark / needed to disconnect. Dolan's message included that Garrett had been doing "great things" under a "difficult situation," that Garrett was appreciated, and that Dolan had an interest in helping navigate the issue. This is supportive in tone, but it also documents leadership awareness of distress. [D]

The fourth anchor is the April-May escalation sequence. Garrett escalated alignment, safety/compliance/ER, and operating-model concerns through April 20, April 22-23, and May 4. At the same time, the record contains work product and operational outputs close in time to termination: intern program materials, SPO recruiting flyers under Google communications constraints, onboarding/orientation materials, calendar/coverage work, HR-DOS work that must be labeled as personal/double-edged, and an emergency-response/ER record around the termination window. [D/CN]

The fifth anchor is the May 11-May 13 intern-rollout sequence. That thread is one of the clearest microcosms of the broader pattern: Garrett asked Jordyn Waters to schedule supervisor training, Joe Glowacki later surfaced exactly the readiness gaps Garrett's prior tracker was meant to control, Jordyn asked Garrett whether he had scheduled it during her absence, and Garrett responded calmly that he understood Jordyn remained the lead unless a specific action item was handed back to him directly. Corina then asked for Garrett's thought process, and he documented that he had followed the revised direction to stay close to the TY workbook baseline instead of overbuilding without Project Executive direction. [D]

The sixth anchor is the termination and post-termination review. Turner terminated Garrett effective May 19, 2026 and offered $20,800 severance plus a $1,865.66 COBRA offset and outplacement, conditioned on an unsigned release with a 21-day review period. On June 2, Garrett emailed CEO Peter Davoren and Abrar Sheriff, cc Patrick Blake and Aaron Wiebelhaus, seeking executive review before the severance deadline. Peter Davoren routed the review to Rodney Pope. On June 5, Pope upheld the decision, using language about lost confidence, collaboration, adherence to leadership direction, and inappropriate images found on a company-issued device. The May 19 rationale and June 5 rationale are not identical, which counsel should evaluate as a factual sequencing issue. [D/Q]

Fact-Control Rules and Accuracy Corrections

Counsel should keep the narrative disciplined. The strongest facts are the documented chronology, the Owner's Manual disclosure, the Dolan welfare/support texts, the May 11-May 13 intern rollout thread, dated work product close to termination, the May 19 termination letter/release, and the June 2-June 5 executive-review thread. [D]

Do not overstate facts that are still Garrett's account. The February 18 Corina call, the exact verbal disclosure to Jeff Dolan at HRM Bootcamp, Brandon Goings' potential corroboration of distress, the precise termination-meeting words, several manager quotes, and the intern-work "reused/repackaged" theory need corroboration or version history before they are treated as established facts. [CN/GA/EH]

Do not rely on the exact statement that Kevin Ward wrote the concerns were "significant enough that we need to be aware and think through the right way to support" until the native email is produced. One later source-check says that exact statement was not found as a distinct primary record and may trace to prior reconstructions or an unrelated Clayco domestic-violence email. This should be treated as unresolved unless counsel obtains the native record. [US/EH]

Do not state that "four concerns were raised in writing" without qualification. The record shows at least the February 9 written "Aligning on JV Execution" item and the April 22 "CTS ER Concern - Alignment" item, and it references April 9 and April 20 items, but the exact set of four concerns and whether all four were written versus some verbal is inconsistent across summaries. Counsel should obtain native email records. [D/CN/EH]

Do not present the $250K / assignment-through-2029 issue as documented compensation. The termination severance math points to approximately $125K annualized base pay. The exhibit index says no reviewed document states a $250K figure and no offer letter/pay stub/assignment memo was found in connected personal accounts. If there is an assignment memo, counsel should obtain and analyze it separately. [D/C/EH]

Do not confuse names. The manager in the reviewed documents is Corina Murguia. Use "Corina" unless a primary source actually says "Karina." Alex Saleh and Alex Willis are different people: Alex Saleh is connected to a Google / City-of-Haskell communication directive; Alex Willis is connected to the project / Leadership Surge / CAI / L2P / communication-control workstream. Jasmin Pintor and Jazmin Padilla should also be kept separate. [D/EH]

Do not use AI reconstruction counts as evidence. The record contains many AI-generated summaries, behavior-count tallies, and advocacy artifacts. They can point counsel toward files to obtain, but they should not be cited as primary fact sources. [D]

Full Narrative Chronology

This chronology starts with role setup and then moves through the first documented role-alignment escalation, the disability disclosure and welfare-check sequence, the April-May escalation cycle, the intern-rollout breakdown, termination, and the post-termination executive review. When exact times are not established, the entry says so instead of guessing.

September-October 2025: Role Setup and Onboarding Context

The connected-account search surfaced a September-October 2025 onboarding chain and an October 6, 2025 first-day email. Details of the September 19-22 and October 2 items appear in the master chronology index, but the current extract does not provide enough detail to narrate them safely. Counsel should treat them as onboarding setup dates and review the native onboarding chain. [D/EH]

On October 8, 2025, Garrett Baxley began employment with Turner Construction Company as the on-site HR Manager for the CTS LoneStar JV. The role supported a Google data-center project in the Lueders/Haskell, Texas area. The JV partners identified in the record are Turner, Clayco, Source Building Group, and TW Constructors. [D]

The project environment matters. Garrett was not in a routine single-employer office HR role. The record describes a multi-employer, multi-stakeholder construction environment with Turner, JV partners, Google-facing communications constraints, field orientation, site access, intern program design, emergency response, safety/ER issues, staffing, and project communications. That complexity is central to whether later "performance" criticism was isolated or part of a role-authority breakdown. [D/CN]

December 2025-January 2026: Early HR/ER Context and Positive Signals

The record references a December 2025 "Haskell Site Investigation" involving Source Building Group and medical-privacy / ADA / retaliation-adjacent issues concerning third parties. The exhibit index states the original chain began in December 2025 and was later forwarded to Dolan on or around March 2, 2026. Counsel should obtain the native chain. [D/EH]

Independent praise leads exist before the termination window. The exhibit index identifies Merrill Bowers on January 22, 2026 and Joe Glowacki on January 25, 2026 as praise / "doing the work" leads, including Joe's "Great job… refining our onboarding" language. Native emails should be obtained and used instead of reconstruction summaries. [D/EH]

February 9, 2026: First Documented Role-Alignment Escalation

The first strong chronology anchor is February 9, 2026. Garrett sent Corina Murguia an "Aligning on JV Execution" email. The key phrase preserved in the exhibit index is "I need to reset this." This should be treated as the first documented role/operating-model escalation currently visible in the clean record. [D]

The importance is timing and framing. This was before the February 17 disability disclosure, before the March welfare/check-in sequence, before the April-May escalation cluster, and before the May intern-rollout dispute. It supports the position that Garrett was trying to identify and correct a role-execution problem early, not merely defending himself after termination. [D]

February 13-17, 2026: HRM Bootcamp and Written Disability Disclosure

On February 13, 2026, Turner's HRM Bootcamp pre-work required employees to complete an Owner's Manual. That point matters because the later disclosure was not random or unsolicited; it was made through a company-invited HR channel. [D]

On February 16, 2026, the Owner's Manual document was created/modified according to metadata listed in the exhibit index: template author Jill Lause, last modified by "Baxley, Garrett - (TEXAS)," created/modified 2026-02-16T22:01Z. [D]

On or about February 17, 2026, Garrett emailed the Owner's Manual to Corina Murguia. The document disclosed that he is "on the spectrum" and explained the work conditions that help him perform: explicit expectations, direct feedback, consistent structure, and clarity when expectations shift. It explained that ambiguity can cause internal overload, anxiety, panic, and depression, and that shifting expectations can become "performance as identity" harm. [D]

Important nuance: the transmittal reportedly said it was "not a request for special treatment," asked that it "stay between us," and said Garrett did not want it to become a label. That does not erase the disclosure, but it is a fact counsel must handle because Turner may use it to argue there was no formal accommodation request or no request to share beyond Corina. [D]

February 18, 2026 Approx.: Corina Follow-Up Call

Garrett's account is that Corina called the next day, on or about February 18, 2026. During that call, depression was discussed. Corina reportedly shared that her son or a close family member had battled depression, became emotional, and asked Garrett what he needed. Garrett says he told her he needed support and, specifically, that removing ambiguity is what helps him. [CN/GA]

This is potentially important because it would convert the Owner's Manual from a written disclosure into an interactive conversation about what support was needed. But the current record treats this as Garrett's account unless corroborated by call logs, calendar records, a contemporaneous text to someone else, a therapist note, or Corina's own account. Counsel should not present the emotional details as documented until corroborated. [CN/EH]

February 23, 2026: Jeff Dolan Welfare / Support Text

On or about February 23, 2026, after Garrett had turned his phone off / needed to disconnect and had left his work phone at the office, Jeff Dolan texted Garrett's personal phone. The message is partially captured in image evidence. Dolan stated that Garrett had been doing "great things" for the company under a "difficult situation," that Garrett was appreciated, and that Dolan had an interest in helping navigate the issue. The record also references a "please let me know you are safe" line that should be captured in the full thread if not already fully visible. [D/CN]

This is double-edged. It helps Garrett because it documents senior HR awareness of distress and positive recognition from the same executive who later signed the termination. It helps Turner in part because the tone is supportive, not hostile, and because the underlying episode also documents a period where Garrett was unreachable or disconnected. The clean factual point is that Dolan knew Garrett was in a difficult situation and took enough concern to contact him personally. [D]

March 2026: HRM Bootcamp, Additional Check-In, and Compliance Context

Garrett's account is that during HRM Bootcamp, approximately March 10-12, 2026, he told Jeff Dolan in person that his mind works differently, that this was all he had going on in his life at the time, and that he had been struggling with performance as identity. This is potentially powerful if established, but it is currently Garrett's account unless someone else was present, a contemporaneous note exists, or related records corroborate it. [CN/GA]

On March 21, 2026, the exhibit index preserves a Jeff Dolan check-in text: "I am checking in on you. Did you get any rest last night?" Again, the tone is supportive, but the factual value is that Dolan remained aware of Garrett's distress / rest / wellbeing context before the later termination. [D]

On March 26, 2026, the record identifies a “Next Steps for CTS JV Ethics & Compliance Training” chain involving Ken Winfield, Turner Ethics & Compliance Director. This should be reviewed by counsel as part of the broader HR/compliance workstream and project-control context. [D/EH]

April 2026: Escalation, Safety/ER, Manager Friction, and Authority Breakdown

On April 8-9, 2026, Garrett’s intern program tracker was created/modified. The exhibit index identifies the native spreadsheet and notes that the largest program risk was housing and commute safety / long commutes and road conditions, and that the objective was a future staffing pipeline for 2027-2029. This matters because later intern-readiness issues align with controls Garrett says he had tried to build earlier. [D]

On April 12-13, 2026, Lyra Health records reportedly show that a Schedule-II refill was routed to community care. On April 16, Garrett asked to push a session back because he was pulled into a meeting in his HR Director role. These Lyra records corroborate underlying treatment but do not, by themselves, show employer notice because EAP usage is confidential. Employer notice still depends on the Owner’s Manual, Corina call, Dolan texts, and any other direct disclosures. [C/CN]

On April 20, 2026, the record identifies an “Alignment” escalation to Jeff Dolan with Kevin Ward copied. This is distinct from the April 22 “CTS ER Concern - Alignment.” The June 2 executive-review email later recapped the April 20 escalation. Counsel should obtain the native April 20 email and Kevin’s April 21 reply, because the current record treats them as important but employer-held. [D/EH]

On April 22-23, 2026, Garrett sent or participated in “CTS ER Concern - Alignment,” a safety/compliance/employee-relations escalation involving Corina, Kevin Ward, and later additional leadership. This is one of the closer calls if counsel evaluates safety/ER-related protected activity; ordinary role-clarity complaints are weaker, but safety/compliance framing may matter. [D/EH]

On or around April 26-27, the record references Joe Glowacki complimenting Garrett’s engagement and appreciating that he asked for assistance. It also references a divergence between negative engagement framing relayed to Garrett and Joe’s own compliment. Counsel should obtain Joe’s native message or statement. [D/CN/EH]

On April 29, multiple related issues appear in the record: a Glowacki “Sorry Garrett. Forgot to copy you” message; Garrett’s account of being routed around or copied after the fact; manager comments such as “Maybe you need to do some reflecting to see why people are coming to me instead of you”; and the “OK fine Garrett goodbye” quote. The date for “OK fine Garrett goodbye” is unresolved because one source places it on April 24 and another on May 1. Counsel should not lock that quote to a date until the native “Cm personal” / “Proof” self-notes are reviewed. [D/CN/EH]

On April 30, 2026, an authentic “One Team Calendar & Coverage Standard” deck was issued. It included “Daily Stretch & Flex begins at 6:00 a.m.,” stated that broad Friday and summer early closures were not part of the CTS LoneStar JV standard, and marked itself as a coordination tool only, with parent-company policy governing employment administration. This is relevant to the later availability/coverage topic. [D]

May 1-5, 2026: Routing, Reset Memo, and Work Product

On May 1, 2026, the exhibit index identifies an Andy Tandon routing email with the language: “Yes we are hiring. Copied Corina Murguia as she can grab his resume etc quickly.” Garrett’s position is that this fits a routed-around-HR theme. The cautious framing is not that anyone acted unlawfully; it is that authority-bearing work and information sometimes reached Garrett after the fact even though he was accountable for HR execution. [D/CN]

On May 4, 2026, Garrett created a memo titled “Memorandum - Operating Model Reset - CTS LoneStar (v12)” or “GB HR Concerns,” with metadata created 2026-05-04T22:15Z and modified 2026-05-04T22:47Z. The record describes this as a nine-page reset/concerns memo to Kevin Ward. The memo reportedly framed the issue as not a complaint, but a request for support after direct attempts with the manager. Counsel should review the native memo. [D]

A caution is necessary here. Earlier summaries say Kevin Ward forwarded or described the concerns as significant enough to think through how to support Garrett. A later adversarial source-check says that exact Kevin Ward quote was not found as a distinct primary source and should not be relied on until native records are obtained. Counsel should treat the existence of the May 4 memo as documented, but the precise Kevin response as unresolved. [D/US/EH]

On May 5, 2026, Garrett sent or rebuilt the CTS Intern Experience deck and ReView form to Corina and Jordyn. The record identifies this as substantive, dated work product close in time to termination. The intern materials described the CTS LoneStar Alliance internship experience for thirteen interns across five buildings, included partner names, non-exempt/overtime rules, and an escalation framework in which medium-level performance gaps were to be documented and coached, giving interns a chance to improve. [D]

May 7-8, 2026: Teams / Availability Issue

On May 7-8, 2026, Corina raised Teams-status / availability feedback. The record says the message later showed “Edited.” Garrett appears to have agreed in writing, using language like “Understood… I’ll update it.” There is also a May 8 self-coaching memo about handling Corina’s edited message, DND filtering, and preserving a cooperative tone without conceding the directive. [D/CN]

This is an employer counter-narrative point. Turner may use it to support an availability / adherence / collaboration framing. Garrett’s counter-context is that the Teams issue came after months of role ambiguity and while he was doing late-night work; however, counsel should treat the self-coaching memo as discoverable and potentially unfavorable because it may read as strategic perception-management rather than distress. [D/CN]

May 9-13, 2026: Alex Saleh / Alex Willis / City-of-Haskell Communication Control

The record separates Alex Saleh from Alex Willis. Alex Saleh appears in connection with a directive to halt City-of-Haskell communications. Alex Willis appears in connection with Garrett’s project-level communication acknowledgment / Leadership Surge / CAI / L2P workstream. The exhibit index says the existence of a Saleh directive and Garrett’s compliance-control work with Alex Willis is documentable, but the link to any payment or cover-up theory is Garrett’s inference and not established. [C/US]

On or around May 9-13, records mention “Interim Support,” “Acknowledgment Received - Communication Discipline Interim Awareness,” and Alex Willis’s “Communication Discipline - Acknowledgment Tracking” Google Sheet. The clean factual point is that Garrett and Alex Willis were involved in interim communication-control work responding to a Google-side communication directive. Counsel should verify the native sheets, landing page, and acknowledgment records. [D/EH]

May 11-13, 2026: Intern Rollout, Supervisor Training, and Communication Breakdown

This is one of the most readable fact clusters and should be placed directly in front of counsel. It shows the pattern in miniature: early structure, rejected or revised direction, later readiness gaps, ambiguity over ownership, and Garrett documenting his understanding calmly.

May 11, 2026 at 5:27 PM: Garrett emailed Joe Glowacki, Jordyn Waters, Corina Murguia, Andy Tandon, and Paul Rooney regarding intern follow-up questions. Garrett wrote that he had no additional rollout questions at that time; that his understanding from his conversation with Corina was that Corina was working through follow-up items; and that once final direction for rollout was confirmed, he was happy to support where needed. He then asked Jordyn: “if not already on the calendar, can you please schedule the supervisor training for Thursday?” and tied the request to Clayco’s first intern arrival. [D]

May 13, 2026 at 11:35 AM: Joe Glowacki emailed Jordyn, copied Garrett, Corina, Andy, and Paul, asking whether supervisors knew they were being volunteered, whether supervisors’ supervisors knew what was happening, and whether campus leads were aware of the program. These are the exact kinds of readiness controls Garrett says his earlier intern tracker was designed to manage: supervisor buy-in, supervisory chain awareness, campus lead communication, and program alignment. [D]

May 13, 2026 at 12:52 PM: Jordyn emailed Garrett, cc Corina, asking: “Did you get this scheduled during my absence?” This created a responsibility-shift issue because Garrett had already asked Jordyn on May 11 to schedule it, and the provided screenshots do not show a direct handoff back to Garrett for that specific scheduling action. [D]

May 13, 2026 at 1:49 PM: Garrett responded to Jordyn, cc Corina. He said he had not scheduled it because when he asked Monday about getting the supervisor training on the calendar for Thursday, his understanding was that Jordyn was still taking the lead. He added that if something needed to shift or she needed him to cover a specific action item, she should communicate that directly and he was happy to help make sure it got handled. This is one of the strongest tone records: direct, calm, and collaborative. [D]

May 13, 2026 at 2:48 PM: Corina asked Garrett to walk through the material and said she wanted to understand his thought process for how it was to be used. In isolation, that could be neutral manager questioning. In context, it matters because Garrett says he had already created a more comprehensive tracker, that version had not been used, and he was following revised direction. [D/CN]

May 13, 2026 at 3:01 PM: Garrett replied to Corina that his thought process was based on the direction discussed. He said he had originally built a more comprehensive intern onboarding tracker using what he saw available in TKN and what seemed relevant for the project environment. Since that version was not used, he understood the next direction to be using the TY workbook as the baseline. He said he intentionally stayed close to the TY structure, rebranded it for CTS LoneStar, made light cleanup/organization changes, and did not materially change activity/training items because he did not want to overbuild or add project-specific requirements without Project Executive direction. [D]

Counsel should frame this as a governance problem, not an ego/credit issue. The clean issue is that Garrett appears to have been questioned after following revised direction. If the employer later says he failed to execute, failed to communicate, or failed to follow direction, this thread shows that he documented expectations, offered support, avoided overbuilding without authorization, and asked for direct handoff when ownership shifted. [D]

May 13-16, 2026: Onboarding, Recruiting, ER, and Praise Close to Termination

On May 13, 2026, a work-product search report identified current onboarding/orientation materials for the project, including the THM New Team Member Orientation - Day One March 2026 deck, a CTS New Hire Orientation deck, longer THM onboarding decks, orientation-request forms, and safety-online-orientation materials. The records show Garrett was involved in locating, evaluating, and organizing onboarding materials during the same week as the disputed intern rollout. [D/CN]

On May 13-14, 2026, Garrett produced or worked on SPO recruiting flyers under Google communications constraints. Earlier context states Google would not allow use of capacity, building names like THM1A, building counts, square footage, or actual site photos; the final flyer work kept CTS LoneStar / Haskell / West Texas identity while excluding restricted items and routing QR codes to Turner careers. This helps rebut a broad "not doing work" theme, but counsel should keep the work-product source files and approval chain clean. [D/CN]

On May 14, 2026, Garrett worked on or circulated the JV holiday schedule / calendar work. This also sits near the availability/coverage topic and should be kept with the authentic One Team Calendar & Coverage Standard, not with machine-generated policy documents. [D]

On May 13-15, the record references a Haskell ER thread involving Latricia Minyard, Sadie Benson, Kathy Freeman, and "Rusty" in ICU. The witness map characterizes this as high-stakes ER work days before termination. Counsel should review the native thread before using details, but the existence of ER work close to termination matters to the "not doing work" rebuttal. [D/EH]

On May 15-16, Tracy Hagen reportedly gave praise regarding the "marvelous recruiting flyers." This is identified as an independent praise lead. Counsel should obtain the native email before relying on the exact quote. [D/EH]

May 18-19, 2026: Final Pre-Termination Context and Termination

On or around May 18, 2026, the exhibit index identifies an "Internship Pay - Haskell (CTS)" thread and additional intern/pay-related records. This may matter if Turner asserts execution gaps around the intern program; native records should be obtained. [D/EH]

On May 19, 2026, Turner terminated Garrett effective that day. The termination letter was on Turner letterhead and signed by Jeff Dolan, Vice President and Senior Director of Human Resources. It stated final paycheck timing of May 29, 2026, benefits ending May 31, 2026, and offered separation benefits if Garrett signed a release: $20,800, a $1,865.66 COBRA offset, and outplacement services. [D]

The release was unsigned. It included a 21-day review period, no seven-day revocation clause, and broad release language including ADA, Title VII, Texas Labor Code Chapter 21, ADEA, FMLA, Payday Law, and common-law claims. It also included return-property / no-copy language and no-cooperation language regarding other employees' claims, subject to government-agency exceptions. Counsel should review before any signing; do not make a false representation about retained records. [D]

The termination-meeting time is not established in the current document set. Garrett's account is that he asked why relocation or reassignment was not considered, and that Jeff referred sarcastically to the "thoroughly detailed document." This should remain Garrett's account until a contemporaneous termination-meeting memo, attendee recollection, or other record supports it. [CN/GA]

The record identifies several May 19 work-product items or artifacts, including an emergency-response operating-system report and an HR onboarding packet investigative review created around the termination window. Some files are timestamped after termination or in the evening; counsel should distinguish pre-termination work from post-termination evidence preparation. [D/CN]

May 21-22, 2026: Evidence Backup and Custody Issues

The connected-account search found that Garrett's personal Google Drive contained a Turner evidence folder uploaded around May 21-22, 2026. The Drive created time is upload time, not authorship. The folder contained .eml files, work-product PDFs/pptx/xlsx, nested zips, Owner's Manual document, images, and attorney-prep materials. [D]

This is useful for custody and organization, but it is also a vulnerability. The release's return-property/no-copy provision and data-handling concerns make document retention attorney-controlled. Counsel should decide what to preserve, how to segregate, and how to avoid any inaccurate certification. [D/Q]

June 2-5, 2026: Executive Review and Post-Termination Rationale

On June 2, 2026 at 16:19, Garrett emailed CEO Peter Davoren and Abrar Sheriff, with Patrick Blake and Aaron Wiebelhaus copied, requesting executive review before the severance deadline. The message reportedly recapped February 9, the February 17 Owner's Manual, the April 20 escalation to Jeff Dolan with Kevin Ward copied, and the May 4 memo. A keyword review found no mention of autism/disability, the device, the project-conduct allegation, or even "availability." It was framed as an operating-model / role-clarity issue. [D]

On June 2, 2026 at 16:49, Peter Davoren replied and copied Rodney Pope, routing the matter to Pope. [D]

Between June 3 and June 5, Rodney Pope sent Teams invites and the review call was rescheduled. The record states that the review call occurred the morning of June 5, approximately 11:30 Eastern, and that the written decision was issued at 9:05 Central. Counsel should reconcile the exact sequencing because those times appear difficult to align if the decision followed the call. [D/EH]

On June 5, 2026, Rodney Pope upheld the termination decision. The written outcome stated Turner would not reverse the decision and used language about lost confidence, collaboration, adherence to leadership direction, and inappropriate images recently discovered on the company-issued device. The email said the review relied on information provided by local leadership and Human Resources representatives who worked directly with Garrett. [D/Q]

The clean factual comparison is that the May 19 stated reason is described in the record as performance / availability / "not doing the work," while the June 5 written outcome uses collaboration / adherence-to-leadership-direction language and introduces the device/image issue. Counsel should decide whether this is ordinary elaboration, a shifting rationale, or an effort to harden the post-termination defense. [D/Q]

Call, Conversation, and Personal-Account Record

This section collects the non-email human interactions that matter. The purpose is not to overstate them; it is to tell counsel where Garrett's testimony may matter and where corroboration should be sought.

Conversation / Call Ledger

Work Product and Operational Contributions

The work-product record matters because Turner’s broad negative framing is disputed. The record does not need to prove Garrett was perfect; it needs to let counsel compare the employer’s stated rationale against dated outputs, communications, and operational contributions close in time to termination.

Operational Workstream Ledger

Workstream	Known Artifacts / Dates	Factual Use / Caution
Onboarding / Orientation	CTS NHO deck; THM Day One decks; orientation request forms; Owen Tucker/onboarding materials search; HR overview showing Garrett as HR POC.	Supports ongoing HR infrastructure work; counsel should separate authoritative files from search reports and AI-assisted summaries.
Intern Program	Intern Program Tracker created 4/8,	Core rebuttal to failure-to-execute modified 4/9; CTS LoneStar Alliance Internship Experience 2026; ReView form; May 11-May 13 supervisor-training chain.	claims; also central to ownership/handoff dispute.

SPO Recruiting Flyers	Four SPO flyers around May 13-14; Google constraints against capacity/building/square footage/site photos; QR to Turner careers.	Strong dated work product close to termination; obtain native approval/distribution records.
Calendar / Coverage	One Team Calendar & Coverage Standard issued Apr. 30; JV holiday schedule May 14.	Relevant to availability/coverage claims; use authentic deck, not machine-generated policy file.
ER / Safety / Incident Work	CTS ER Concern Apr. 22-23; safety-incident tracker; Haskell ER thread May 13-15; emergency-response operating-system report around May 19.	Potentially important for safety/compliance context; verify native timing and recipients.
Alex Willis / Communication Control	Interim communication acknowledgment, landing page, acknowledgment tracking, response to Alex Saleh directive.	Documentable workstream, but avoid unsupported payment/cover-up conclusion.
HR-DOS / GitHub PRs	Personal Beexly-namespaced HR-DOS build around May 12.	Potentially shows capability and throughput, but double-edged because personal/AI/off-mission; label clearly.

Positive Reinforcement and Trust Signals

Counsel should evaluate positive signals because they sit in tension with a sudden broad "not doing work" narrative. These items do not prove illegality by themselves, but they matter for credibility, timing, and pretext analysis if counsel pursues that theory.

Jeff Dolan's February 23 text praised Garrett as doing "great things" under a "difficult situation," said he was appreciated, and offered interest in helping navigate the issue. This is documented, but supportive in tone. [D]

Jeff Dolan's March 21 text checked whether Garrett got rest. Again, supportive, but it documents continued leadership awareness of distress. [D]

Joe Glowacki's compliment about engagement and appreciation for asking for assistance appears in the exhibit index and conflicts with a negative-engagement relay. Native records should be obtained. [D/EH]

Merrill Bowers and Tracy Hagen are identified as independent praise leads. Tracy's May 15-16 praise regarding "marvelous recruiting flyers" is especially important because it is very close to termination. Native emails should be obtained. [D/EH]

A reported 6-7% raise or compensation increase should not be used as established fact in this version. The source-strength audit found that raise language only in generated/prior/unknown sources, not in a Tier A/B native compensation record. [US/EH]

Observed Pattern Themes for Counsel to Evaluate

The following are not legal conclusions. They are factual pattern hypotheses counsel can test against the documents, testimony, and discovery.

- Role-clarity requests followed by performance framing: Garrett repeatedly asked for clarity, support, reset, or alignment; the response allegedly shifted toward performance, availability, engagement, collaboration, or adherence. The key sequence is Feb. 9 -> Feb. 17/18 -> Feb. 23 -> Apr. 20/22 -> May 4 -> May 7/8 -> May 19 -> June 5. [D/CN]
- Authority/accountability mismatch: Garrett's narrative is that he was accountable for HR execution but not always included upstream. Examples include routed-around staffing/presentation items, copied-after-the-fact messages, and intern-rollout decisions where he says prior structure was rejected but later gaps were attributed back to him. [D/CN]
- Work-product contradiction: dated work product continued close to termination, including intern materials, recruiting flyers, onboarding/orientation work, ER/safety work, and calendar/coverage work. This does not prove legal wrongdoing, but it complicates a broad "not doing work" explanation. [D]
- Disability / distress notice: Corina had written disclosure via Owner's Manual; Garrett says Corina also had a follow-up call where he identified support/removing ambiguity; Jeff Dolan had documented awareness of distress via texts and allegedly received a verbal disclosure at HRM Bootcamp. The open issue is whether decision-makers knew the diagnosis / disability specifically, not just distress. [D/CN/EH]
- Moving rationale: the record describes May 19 as performance / availability / "not doing the work," while June 5 uses lost confidence, collaboration, adherence to leadership direction, and device-image language. Counsel should evaluate whether the rationale evolved because new facts emerged, because the initial reason was shorthand, or because the defense shifted. [D/Q]
- Post-termination sensitivity: the device/iCloud issue emerged in the June 5 review after termination. It is significant and potentially damaging, but the timing and access context matter. Counsel should control this issue tightly. [D/Q]

Employer Counter-Narrative and Vulnerabilities to Handle Carefully

A useful lawyer narrative is not just the favorable story. Counsel also needs the facts Turner is likely to use. These should be placed in a private attorney-only section, not hidden from counsel.

- Availability / Teams-status: Corina raised availability/Teams status; Garrett agreed to update it. Turner may characterize this as adherence or availability concern. Garrett can explain the context, but counsel should treat the written agreement and self-coaching memo carefully. [D/CN]
- Dolan texts are supportive: the welfare/support texts can help show notice of distress, but they also show a caring HR leader trying to help, not obvious animus. [D]
- Verbal disclosures need corroboration: the strongest disability-related statements beyond the written Owner's Manual are Garrett's account unless corroborated. [CN/EH]
- No formal PIP / warning found in reviewed personal records: useful, but absence in personal records is not the same as absence in employer-held records. Counsel needs personnel file, manager notes, and HRIS/Workday records. [D/EH]
- AI reconstruction files and behavior counts are discoverable advocacy artifacts, not evidence. They should be quarantined and not used as primary proof. [D]
- Data retention / PII: intern trackers/workbooks may contain intern emails/phones; connector-pulled Turner records and personal-drive backups raise data-handling questions. Counsel should control retention and production. [D/Q]
- HR-DOS and data-center social post: these can show skill and throughput, but they are personal/off-mission and AI-assisted; use only if counsel thinks the benefit outweighs risk. [CN/Q]

- Device/iCloud issue: Turner's June 5 email references inappropriate images discovered on the company-issued device. Garrett's account is that the material was AI-generated/deepfake involving a coworker, reached the device through personal iCloud auto-sync set up because IT had directed downloads through personal iCloud, and was never shown, sent, posted, threatened, or distributed. It was discovered after termination when Turner accessed the device. This is attorney-only and should not be casually circulated. [D/GA/Q]
- Release provisions: ¶2 return-property/no-copy language and ¶5 no-cooperation language create practical risk. Do not sign anything that creates a false certification about document retention; counsel should manage witness contact and preservation. [D/Q]

Clean Pattern Narrative Counsel Can Read Quickly

This case should be presented first as a chronology, not as an accusation. The record shows an HR Manager placed into a complex JV environment, repeatedly trying to define the operating model and his authority while still producing HR, onboarding, recruiting, intern, ER, and communication-control work. The first documented reset request came on February 9, well before termination. On February 17, through an employer-required Owner's Manual process, Garrett disclosed autism and described the precise work conditions that make him effective: clear standards, direct feedback, consistent expectations, and reduced ambiguity. Within days, Jeff Dolan was texting him support and recognition under a "difficult situation."

From April into May, the same operating problem appears to have intensified. Garrett escalated alignment and ER/safety concerns to senior HR channels. He then sent a May 4 reset memo. During the same period, the record shows live work product and project support, including intern materials, onboarding/orientation organization, recruiting flyers subject to Google constraints, calendar/coverage materials, and communication-control work with Alex Willis. The most concrete example is the May 11-May 13 intern rollout: Garrett requested supervisor training, Joe surfaced readiness gaps, Jordyn questioned whether Garrett had scheduled the training, and Garrett responded by clarifying that if ownership shifted, it needed to be directly communicated. When Corina asked for his thought process, Garrett documented that he had followed revised direction and avoided adding project-specific requirements without Project Executive alignment.

Turner terminated Garrett on May 19. The severance/release offered two months of pay and COBRA offset in exchange for broad releases. The post-termination executive review then introduced a somewhat different rationale: lost confidence, collaboration, adherence to leadership direction, and the device-image issue. The lawyer's job is to test whether that full sequence is an ordinary performance termination, or whether it shows a pattern where Garrett identified the operating breakdown, disclosed why ambiguity was uniquely destabilizing for him, asked for support, continued producing work, and was then terminated for the same ambiguity/availability/performance dynamic he had been trying to resolve.

Attorney-Only Sensitive Addendum

The device/iCloud matter should be kept attorney-only. Turner's June 5 email says inappropriate images were discovered on Garrett's company-issued device. Garrett's account is that the content was AI-generated/deepfake, involved a coworker, synced to the company-issued device/iPad through personal iCloud because downloads were routed through personal iCloud with IT knowledge, was never shown, sent, published, threatened, or distributed, and was discovered only after termination when Turner accessed the device. Counsel needs the MDM/iCloud setup, device chain of custody, access logs, and policy records before deciding how to handle it. [D/GA/Q]

Do not contact potential witnesses such as Tandee Butler, Brandon Goings, or other employees to coordinate accounts. Preserve names, dates, and what they may know, but let counsel decide whether and how to approach them. This is especially important because the unsigned release contains no-cooperation language, and witness coordination can create credibility problems. [D/Q]

The strongest documented spine is: (1) Garrett was the HR Manager on a complex CTS LoneStar / Google project; (2) he sent a February 9 reset/alignment email before the disability disclosure and before termination; (3) he submitted a February 17 Owner's Manual through a Turner-required Bootcamp process disclosing autism and explaining the exact ambiguity/performance conditions that destabilize him; (4) Jeff Dolan, who later signed the termination letter, texted Garrett supportive/welfare language within days and again in March; (5) Garrett escalated operating-model / ER / alignment concerns in April and May; (6) the May 11-May 13 intern-rollout thread shows a concrete communication/ownership breakdown and Garrett's calm written clarification; (7) Garrett had dated work product close to termination; (8) Turner terminated him May 19 and later upheld the decision June 5 using language that was not identical to the original performance/availability framing.

The hardest factual issues are: proving decision-maker knowledge of the disability beyond Corina, corroborating the February 18 call and verbal disclosures, separating legitimate performance/availability concerns from disability-related ambiguity/stress, managing AI-generated reconstruction files and document-retention issues, and handling the post-termination device/iCloud matter without letting it swamp the employment chronology.

The record is not clean enough to call every allegation established. It is strong enough to justify a careful attorney review of whether the termination rationale is isolated performance judgment or part of a broader pattern of role ambiguity, notice, support requests, work-product contradiction, and shifting post-termination justification.
